A REGATTA HITCH.

The Hawaiian Rowing Association, formed last year to control regattas, has a rule that oarsmen in regatta crews must be members of the club for which they row three months previous to the regatta. This rule, it is said, was devised to prevent any club from importing professional rowers from abroad to win a race. It is being applied this year, however, with such unnecessary strictness as to deprive one of the oldest and best clubs of the city from participation in the approaching regatta. If the emergency for which the rule is asked to be relaxed had been caused by want of forethought, or a disposition to jockey the races, on the part of the club in question, there would be no reason to complain of the decision reported to have been made by the association. As the facts are represented, however, on the part of the aggrieved club, the association is exhibiting somewhat unworthy sharpness.

It appears that two oarsmen of the Myrtle Club's senior six-oared crew, while the crew was in training for the King's birthday regatta, suddenly left the club and joined the Honolulu Yacht and Boat Club's corresponding crew. There was only about a fortnight to spare before the requisite interval of three months began. The Myrtle Club, having difficulty in apportioning its men between the senior and junior crews, had not time to obtain oarsmen to fill the places of the two who had left. Up till a few days ago the club was encouraged to believe that a concession would be made for its benefit, so as to permit filling the vacancies from the ranks of local oarsmen not in other active clubs. However, at the meeting of the Hawaiian Rowing Association the other night, it is learned, the decision was made that the Myrtle Club should not have the desired privilege. Under the circumstances, there can be only one opinion as to the chivalrousness, not to say fairness, characterizing this decision. If aquatics are to be kept free from objectionable corollaries in Honolulu, there should be a more generous spirit cultivated in the rivalry of different clubs, than is calculated to be produced by this action of the association. Surely the regatta on the occasion of His Majesty's jubilee is not going to be in a large degree spoiled for the public by a piece of petty legalism. The rule in question was never designed to be used for taking advantage of an unforeseen misfortune happening to any club connected with the association.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

It is to be hoped the planter's are not going to be struck with inkophobia. They are only talking, however, for they all love the newspapers.

If the Colonization Company gets money from England, the country could bear with equanimity the failure of the Government loan.

The accession of an energetic business man, withal one of special experience for the duties of the office, to the head of the postal service of Hawaii, is a matter of congratulation to the whole Kingdom.

There should be a full attendance at the Royal Hawaiian Agricultural Society's annual meeting on Thursday evening. The organization should not be allowed to relapse into a fossil state. More than ever does it appear necessary that general agriculture should be fostered in this Kingdom.

If the present Ministry is only temperary, as most people seem to believe, it is to be hoped that Mr. Antonio Rosa will receive the Attorney Generalship in the Cabinet. He has been doing the work well for a good while now, and is entitled to the honors apart from his Hawaiian blood and native birth.

A Lonely Island in the Atlantic.

Belle Isle is a gigantic monolith towering high above the Atlantic. Its savage, beetle-browed head, with roaring caverns, towers over one of the wildest seas on earth. Ordinarily its shores are unapproachable; but a calm enabled us to land at a little wharf propped up among enormous blocks of stone in the mouth of a gorge. And we climbed up the tortuous zigzags to the lighthouse on the summit. Far away to the westward stretches the Strait of Belle Isle, and from the tower we can see the lights at Cape Bauld and Cape Norman. Meanwhile the keeper has finished trimming his lamps, and we descend to the dwelling. This comfortable home is a surprise to such a situation. Although kept by men only, it is tidy, clean, and convenient. The table is spread with good bread, pies, cakes, meat, and preserved berries. They had prepared for the coming of the steamer—their one yearly touch of a friendly hand. Their fancy work decorates the walls—sewing, models of vessels, and painting of marine scenes. They disclaim any feeling of loneliness, and profess even a great attachment for this rock and their isolated life. They receive by the steamer each fall all that they need during the year, and haul it up with a horse and cart from the landing to the lighthouse. They get a cow to milk until she is fat enough to kill; the milk is frozen and packed in barrels, to keep a supply until the goats give milk in the spring. In March and April the sealing schooners and steamers work their way from Newfoundland and the Gulf of Belle Isle. It must be a welcome sight to watch the advent of these first messengers from the civilized world. The little armies of men swarm out of the vessels on to the ice in the pursuit of seals, or come on shore to learn of their movements. The lighthouse then is packed with rough hearty men—a kind of human gale sweeps over his polar crag.

The Intellectual Johnny.

Johnny's mother was rather proud of her skill in the hair-cutting line, and was very fond showing it, much to Johnny's disgust. Being 9 years old he was disposed to patronize the barber. The other day when his mother was making the preparations which usually preceded the terrible ordeal which he knew was to make him the laughing stock of his playmates, he remarked: "Mamma, I'm not going to have my hair cut to-day." "What do you mean Johnny?" "I can't allow it, ma. I'm really afraid. It's dangerous." "What on earth are you afraid of, child?" "Why, mamma," said the precocious youngster, backing into a corner, "I'm surprised at you. Didn't you ever hear what happened to Samson because he let a woman cut his hair? You ought to read your Bible." His mother was so thoroughly astonished that he made his escape to the street before she could say another word.

TRADE POINTERS.

When a restaurant is advertised as being free from flies, the public are bound to believe that it is so until they have proved the contrary. Therefore, it is incumbent on all eaters away from home to give a trial to the Pacific House, down by the waters of the mighty Pacific.

The Best Tonic.

Mr. Henry Billings, Washington, D. C., writes: "I have used your Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky for medicinal purposes. As a tonic I consider it superior to the hundreds of concoctions which are now flooding the land as stimulant liquors."

The Paris Univers publishes a telegram from the Bishop of Tonquin saying that 700 Christians have been massacred and forty villages burned in the province of Manhoa, and that 9,000 Christians are perishing of hunger.
